VI. Publications

Books (author):

Libertarianism without Inequality (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2003), 168 pages

Book symposia in Raisons Politiques and Iyyun (see items 16-18 below). Reviewed in Philosophy and Phenomenological Research (by Gopal Sreenivasan), The Notre Dame Philosophical Reviews (by Ian Carter), Ethics (by Alex Gosseries), Imprints (by Anca Gheaus), The Philosophical Review (by Timothy Hinton), and Mind (by Samuel Freeman). (NB: A number of journals – including the Philosophical Quarterly, Mind, and the TLS – failed to receive review copies when the book was published in 2003.)

Chapter One – entitled ‘Self-Ownership and Equality’ – is a substantially revised version of an article by the same name that has been reprinted in the following anthology of significant work on left-libertarianism published between 1970 and 2000: Peter Vallentyne and Hillel Steiner, eds. Left-Libertarianism and Its Critics: The Contemporary Debate (Palgrave, 2000), pp. 149-73. The article has also been published in a six-volume anthology of the 100 most significant articles on equality and justice published in the twentieth century: Peter Vallentyne, ed., Equality and Justice, vol. 6: Desert and Entitlement (Routledge, 2003). Chapter One has been the subject of the following research articles: Mathias Risse, ‘Does Left-Libertarianism have Coherent Foundations?’ Politics, Philosophy, and Economics 3 (2004): 337-64, Akira Inoue, ‘Can a Right of Self-Ownership be Robust?’ Law and Philosophy 26 (2007): 575-87, and Richard Arneson, ‘Self-Ownership and World Ownership: Against Left-Libertarianism’, Social Philosophy and Policy 27 (2010): 168-94.

Chapter Seven – entitled ‘The Problem of Intergenerational Sovereignty’ – is the topic of Víctor M. Muñiz-Fraticelli’s ‘The Problem of a Perpetual Constitution’, in Alex Gosseries and Lukas Meyer, eds. Intergenerational Justice (Oxford University Press, 2009).

Books (editor):

G. A. Cohen, On the Currency of Egalitarian Justice and Other Essays in Political Philosophy (Princeton: Princeton University Press, 2011 [in press]), 282 pages

Articles and Book Chapters:

1. ‘The Paradox of Group Beneficence’, Philosophy & Public Affairs 20 (1991): 132-49
2. ‘Killing the Innocent in Self-Defense’, Philosophy & Public Affairs 23 (1994): 74-94
Reply by Helen Frowe, ‘Equating Innocent Threats and Bystanders’, Journal of Applied Philosophy 25 (2008): 277-290.
3. ‘Quinn on Punishment and Using Persons as Means’, Law and Philosophy 15 (1996): 201-08
4. ‘Kamm on the Morality of Killing’, Ethics 108 (1997): 197-207
5. ‘Self-Ownership and Equality: A Lockean Reconciliation’, Philosophy & Public Affairs 27 (1998): 65-92

Reprinted in Peter Vallentyne and Hillel Steiner, eds., Left-Libertarianism and Its Critics: The Contemporary Debate (Basingstoke, England: Palgrave, 2000), and in Peter Vallentyne, ed., Equality and Justice, vol. 6: Desert and Entitlement (New York: Routledge, 2003).

6. ‘Incompatibilism and the Avoidability of Blame’, Ethics 108 (1998): 685-701

VIII. Teaching

Teaching at UCL:

- Graduate seminar, 'Graduate Studies in Moral Philosophy', 09-10 (on self-defence and war), 10-11 (on identity, non-identity, and ethics)
- Third year undergraduate and MA/MPhilStud course, 'Normative Ethics', 09-10, 10-11
- Second year undergraduate course, 'Topics in Political Philosophy: Rawls and Nozick', 10-11
- First year undergraduate course, 'Introduction to Political Philosophy', 09-10, 10-11

Between 1998 and 2009, I undertook what was then the standard teaching load in the Philosophy Department of 9 contact hours per week. This consisted of a mixture of undergraduate lectures, MA and MPhil/PhD seminars, undergraduate tutorials, and MA and MPhil/PhD supervision. My undergraduate lectures included a year-long Introduction to Political Philosophy for first year students and Intercollegiate Lectures for second and final year students on Political Philosophy (Locke; Mill; Property and Equality) and Moral Philosophy (Consequentialism and Deontology; Moral Responsibility). I offered MA and MPhil/PhD seminars across a range of topics in moral and political philosophy and co-convened the General Research Seminar for MPhil and PhD students. I also offered postgraduate supervision and undergraduate tutorials in moral and political philosophy.

Teaching at other universities:

University of Pittsburgh:

- Graduate seminar, 'Topics in Ethics', F08
- Lower division course, 'Introduction to Political Philosophy', F08

UCLA:

- Graduate seminar, 'Seminar for First-Year Graduate Students: Ethics', F92, W95
- Graduate seminar, 'Problems in Moral Philosophy', F93, F95 (co-taught)
- Graduate seminar, 'Seminar: Political Theory', W92, S95, F96, S98
- Upper division course, 'Topics in Value Theory: Rationality and Action', S95, F96
- Upper division course, 'Topics in Ethical Theory: Normative Ethics', S92, W93, F93
- Upper division course, 'Topics in Political Philosophy', F95, S98
- Upper division course, 'Philosophy of Law', F91, S93
- Lower division course, 'Introduction to Political Philosophy', F91, F92, W94, W95, S97, S98
- Lower division course, 'Contemporary Moral Issues', Summer 98

Curriculum Vitae

Yale University:

- Graduate seminar, 'Neo-Lockean Political Philosophy', S96
- Introductory course, 'Introduction: Political Philosophy', S96
